

Sully Woodlands Trail Plan

- Provides extensive non-vehicular connections in Western Fairfax (SWRMP pg 14)
- Proposes 4x more PA trails than currently in place
- Offers opportunity to work with multiple government agencies to create a strong trail network

The Park Authority is also rolling out the Sully Woodlands Trail Plan during this project.

This plan establishes general locations for trail networks and connections in the entire Sully Woodlands Regional area. The recommendations include trails on parkland and on other publicly owned lands to create a comprehensive trail network.

The plan is available on-line at the this project webpage. You can also met with the trails program manager, Liz Cronauer, at the trails station in the room. She can address any questions or comments you might have.

The regional plan covers 4,400 acres of parkland and 43 parks. The region aligns with the Bull Run and Cub Run Watersheds. A regional approach was used in this area due to the large assemblage of properties in the southwestern part that needed to be planned. Examining this assemblage of parkland and determining use and management zones in context with established parks in the two watersheds was a primary outcome of the regional plan.
